

A Statement on Hurricane Harvey's Impact on Texas Education, Edgenuity to Take Action

Scottsdale, AZ – September 6, 2017 – Hurricane Harvey has amassed sustainable damage across Texas, and as a result many of our partner schools are unable to open or are in desperate need of repair. Through our partnership with the Texas Student Success Initiative, a number of schools are implementing our Pathblazer formative assessment for their English Language Arts, grades 6-8. We would like to offer these schools the full Pathblazer intervention product, including all content and lessons, at no additional cost.

Edgenuity is committed to providing all students with access to high quality education, wherever they are, and those currently impacted in Texas are no exception. We understand that having the flexibility of an online program may be helpful to many students, and we hope that our contribution will help schools provide the necessary resources to support these students and their teachers.

About Edgenuity

Edgenuity is a leading provider of digital curriculum and instructional services for the K-12 market. Our products are used in 9 of the top 15 U.S. school districts to help educators address their students' most critical academic needs. School districts use Edgenuity online solutions to improve student outcomes, including Edgenuity's Courseware™ for initial credit and credit recovery, Pathblazer® and MyPath™ for intervention and UpSmart™ to prepare for state assessments. For more information, visit Edgenuity.com.